

Dear Valued Customer,

Thank you for your recent request regarding the European Union's REACH regime.

With the publication of the REACH "Candidate List," Companies manufacturing products and articles in, or importing products and articles into, the EU may have specific chemical notification reporting and communication requirements with regard to Substances of Very High Concern (SVHC).

We realize that this places additional diligence and potential communication requirements on our customers, and we therefore encourage our electronic component manufacturers to make this information easily accessible on their websites.

As a non-EU distributor, Avnet's Americas region does not manufacture the products that we supply, and we do not control the manufacturing process or chemical content of the product. As a result, we do not provide material declaration. Information on SVHCs should be obtained directly from the component manufacturer.
